BEER STYLES

BEERS AT THE JAR

With the number of beers available these days, the world of hops and brews can be an intimidating one. We have put together a selection of old favourites, new loves and a couple of adventurous unknowns for you to choose from.

If you are uncertain as to what may suit your taste, but fancy being brave and trying something new; please do not hesitate to ask a member of staff to recommend something similar to your usual order — you may even find a new favourite.

ALE is brewed from malted barley using a warm fermentation with a strain of brewers' yeast. The yeast ferments the beer quickly, giving it a sweet, full bodied and fruity taste.

PALE ALE is made by warm fermentation using pale malt. It is one of the world's major beer styles. The lighter colour is the result of using a higher proportion of pale malts.

IPA; INDIA PALE ALES are known to have a bitter taste because of the hops used to brew them. There is a citrus flavor in IPAs, usually with notes of grapefruit.

APA; AMERICAN PALE ALES have significant quantities of American hops, typically Cascade. It is the American hops that distinguish an APA from British or European pale ales.

LAGER is a type of beer that is fermented and conditioned at low temperatures. Pale lager is the most popular style of beer in the world.

STOUT is a dark beer made using roasted malt or roasted barley, hops, water and yeast.

WEISSBIER is a Bavarian beer in which a significant proportion of malted barley is replaced with malted wheat.

WITBIER is a barley / wheat fermented beer. It gets its name due to suspended yeast and wheat proteins that give the beer a hazy appearance when cold.

PILSNER is a type of pale lager. It took its name from the city of Pilsen where it was first produced in 1842.

CIDER is made from fruit juice, most commonly and traditionally apple juice.
